Chrysanthemums

Stuber's Tall May-

The All-

DARWIN (D), COTTAGE (C), Types in Every

They have large, dazzling flowers on tall, graceful stems. No garden is complete without them in May.

Always plant them in groups of a dozen or more, 5 to 10 inches deep and 5 to 6 inches apart, in a sunny, well-drained spot, in the fall before frost hardens the ground. Plant bulbs with the pointed end up.

We have large stocks of extra-strong, healthy bulbs, imported directly from Holland. Every bulb is guaranteed to bloom next spring.

These Tulips grow 24 to 30 inches tall. The height given for each variety is average, and some variation is natural. Their blooming period is May 5 to 20.

Stuber's Narcissi or Daffodils

Narcissus and Daffodil mean the same thing. Daffodil is the common name, Narcissus the botanical. They bloom early, last a long time, and are so varied that they have few equals as garden flowers. Plant them in early fall, 6 inches apart and 6 inches deep, and they will multiply and bloom profusely year after year. Best in groups of one variety, not in rows.
